

WELCOME TO
The Food Science Sweden Conference 2023
Research and Innovation
for Food Security

Food security is high on the agenda due to Climate change, COVID-19, and war in Europe. A robust food system is urgently needed, and stakeholders and researchers must collaborate to develop best practises. Join the discussions at the Food Science Sweden Conference 2023 in Uppsala.

Climate change, COVID-19 and war in Europe – the reasons for making the food system more resilient are strong and compelling. Food Science Sweden's Conference 2023 addresses the issue of food security and the need for collaborations between academia and stakeholders to develop knowledge, best practices, and innovations to make things happen. Other topics will be the connection between food security, resilience, and a sustainable food system – are they the same thing?
